Nazis Hurt 3,000 Tanks Against French Front As Allies Slow Down Drive

PARIS, May 18—Unverified reports were current in Paris today that General Maxime Weygand, Allied commander-in-chief in the Near East, has arrived in Paris.

HAVE FAITH IN FRENCH ARMY, BRITISH NAVY

NEW YORK, May 18—The New York Sun today advised Americans—and indirectly Canadians—to take "a little rest and ease into the country over the week-end."

Commenting editorially upon the dark week-end facing the Allied people, "the side we leave," the Sun said Americans "should keep their heads cool and their feet on the ground," and concluded:

"In the meantime, the more worried among us would do well to remember that France, with one of the finest armies of modern times, and the British Empire, with perhaps the finest navy of all times, are not likely to be overrun and smashed and demolished in a single battle. It might be good idea to take a turn or two around the block, to get a good idea of the size of the job, to take a little rest and ease into the country over the week-end."

NAZIS SLACKEN DRIVE AGAINST FRENCH LINES

Exhaustion Of German
Apparent But Situation
Still Serious

By WALLACE CARROLL
British United Press Exclusive Cable to The Edmonton Bulletin
LONDON, May 18—The German advance on the French front has "slackened," British military quarters said today, but it was indicated that the slowing might be only temporary.

Exhaustion of German units participating in the attack was said to be "very apparent," but British military experts said that "the situation still is serious."

"Today, however, it is no worse and even a little better," it was said.

Military quarters confirmed that General Henri Giraud, vice of France's foremost and most experienced commander, had taken command of the main part of the "line of the Ruhr."

Giraud was described by the British as a man of great ability and over half French.

South of the river Somme, British military circles claimed, the Germans had thrust their local tank forces into battle. Only slight progress has been made by the Germans in the Havre region but more progress has been made in the Hiron area.

Defence Committee For Home Front Urged On Federal Orders

By LOUIS W. HUNTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A new call to arms, gaining force as it rolls across the country, is being sounded in Canada for strong home defence units to prevent a rise in the Dominion of "fifth column" wretches that opened the way for the Nazi invaders in Europe.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR SEEKING MOST PLANES

Removal Of 8,000-Aircraft Limit Asked By U.S.

Army

WASHINGTON, May 18.—The United States war department asked congress to remove the 8,000-plane top limit on the size of the air arm.

President Roosevelt's proposal for a fleet of 50,000 army and navy aircraft.

The recommendation was made by the house military committee.

Brigadier General L. D. Gase, deputy chief of staff of the army.

Gase testified at the hearing started by the committee to rush through necessary legislation to free the present $1,182,000,000 defence program.

GENERAL APPROVAL
The attitude of haste coincided with general approval expressed for the program—approval which included that of former president Hoover who is in New York.

Although General Gase gave no indication of how many additional planes the army would need, he said the expansion "might be continued to include battle balloons, if we adopted the Canadian plan."

President Roosevelt disclosed the United States government is considering recommitting all remaining first Great War's destroyers—33 of them—which are not yet in service.

FINANCE PLANS
At a point conference he said also study is being given to the question of government financing of plants for expanded production of defence materials, perhaps with the plants privately operated but government-owned.

Both the House of Representatives and Senate manifested, with scattering exceptions, unanimity that neither approached the plan early New Deal era in 1932. Leaders set themselves the goal of having the program in effect within two weeks.

1,000 GERMAN PLANES LOST DURING DRIVE

By PAT USHER

Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, May 18.—The Royal Air Force last night continued its relentless bombing of enemy communications to hamper the reduction of German columns, and the air force yesterday announced it had lost more than 1,000 aircraft since the invasion of the low countries.

Heavy damage was caused by bombing raids on communications in western Germany, on mechanized columns, tanks, transport and gasoline reserves, the ministry stated.

It decided the German claim of aerial losses was exaggerated, saying that the German high command must have miscalculated their own losses in error. The Allied forces have been in a small fraction of the German claims.

The estimate of German losses was based on careful study of all sources of information, the ministry said, but it warned that the enemy's reserves "are considerable and they for a time at least are able to sustain their effort."

ALLIES FORCES PRESS FORWARD TOWARD NARVIK

ON THE NARVIK FRONT, Norway, May 18.—Allied troops pressed forward last night to clear enemy forces from the last of German-held territory blocking the allies' path to Narvik.

Intensive operations were reported from the Stordalen, where the allies are working to intercept an enemy retreat toward Sweden.

The bulk of the German force, partly encircled by the allies' landings at Bjerkvik, several miles south of Narvik, is reported retreating into the mountainous country to the east.

Narvik, however, is the last hurdle to be cleared on the allies' drive into Narvik.

Changes Planned In Settlement Act

OTTAWA, May 18.—The federal government proposed changes in the settlement act.

Official settlers under the Soldier Settlement Act, the mines and minerals acquired by the government according to notice of resolution appearing yesterday.

Commerce and proceedings in the name of mines minister T. A. Crans.

Suggestions for the organization of home guards have gone forward to Dominion government authorities from an increasing number of municipalities and organizations.

The call for volunteer home defence groups has been sounded on the Pacific coast more strongly than elsewhere in the country.

Four New Members Of Churchill's Cabinet

By DON GILBERT

GENERAL GEMELIN has ordered his troops to advance on the Allied commander brought the 37th week of the war to a close with an order of the day in words similar to those used by Marshal Joffre on the eve of the Battle of the Marne in 1914, when the German march on Paris was halted.

On the outcome of the stand now to be made by the French army, General Gamelin declared, depends "the fate of the fatherland, that of our Allies, and the destiny of the world."

The order came as German armored divisions smashed a path through the French Ardennes toward the heart of France after crossing the Meuse and the southern tip of Belgium.

To the north, in Belgium, where the British Expeditionary Force is fighting with the Belgian army under King Leopold, the tide of German conquest required Brussels, the capital, after the Allied forces, which had been holding Louvain and other points east of Brussels, effected a withdrawal to a line south of the capital.

Hoover and London made known their support for the $118,000,000 program presented to congress yesterday by Mr. Roosevelt. Knox said the president had authorized him to announce a project of a group of patriotic citizens for a system of training camps to produce thousands of expert military aviators.

Meanwhile, with committees on both houses of congress already busy at the program, United States aircraft manufacturers were summoned to a meeting here Monday for a discussion of the central problem of the defence plan, increasing aircraft production capacity to 50,000 fighting planes annually.

BRITISH PRESS DECLARES U.S. PREPARES WAR

Gratification Expressed In England At Armament Efforts

LONDON, May 18.—The British press Friday applauded accounts of President Roosevelt's message to congress under such headlines as "United States prepares for war."

The newspapers expressed gratification that the United States armament efforts—according to the president's expressed wish would not curtail Allied buying of warplanes in America.

The London Daily Mail's commentary, C. W. Price, writing under a four-column headline, "Will America Enter the War?" declared:

"Britain and France are fighting desperately to defeat the vital invasion—even the existence—of every democratic nation in the world, including the United States. In this struggle we may be sure that America will not stand idly by to see us defeated and destroyed."

The New Chronicle's comment was: "We need every plane we can get and the American contribution is valuable. But planes which America can send during the next few weeks will be only a small factor in the battle."

The prospect is that pressure on the Allies will become much greater in the near future through the city of Italy into the war and soon only America could give the Allies effective help at this moment would be to warn Italy that such a move would find the United States at the Allies' side."

Nazi Planes Machine-Gun Crowds Trying To Help Wounded In Street

By H. TAYLOR HENRY
Associated Press Staff Writer

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY

WOMEN WHERE IN BELGIUM

May 18.—Standing in front of a village church, I saw a squadron of some 30 German planes carry out a raid yesterday.

In a nearby field, a farmer continued his ploughing.

About 10 miles away, the Germans started to dig trenches. French and Belgian anti-aircraft planes were opened up adding puffs of smoke from their bursts to wisps of clouds.

Out from the west a French and British fighter squadron suddenly appeared, scattering the German planes. One plane dived toward our group, and we jumped to a stone wall for protection against the machine-gun bullets which we expected to wait against the wall.

The planes pulled out of the dive, however, and returned to the combat, which was not very close.

One of the aerial fights ended in death for an unidentified British pilot—but not before he had downed one of three German planes which were attacking the front, rear and above.

The British planes crashed about four miles away from us in a meadow. The Belgian peasants, with tears in their eyes, told us: "The poor lad. He was a hero. He fought with his plane to the very end to keep it from falling into the hands of the enemy. He lost his own life, but he saved many of ours."

In one French town on the frontier, the official death list of an earlier German raid stands at 27. Of whom 10 were killed and nine bombs made a direct hit on a cafe where several serious others had taken refuge, destroying it. These are not yet accounted for.

Witnesses of the raid said that after the Germans had dropped their bombs they landed in the machine-gunned crowds in the streets who were trying to help the wounded.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY

WOMEN WHERE IN BELGIUM

May 18.—Standing in front of a village church, I saw a squadron of some 30 German planes carry out a raid yesterday.

In a nearby field, a farmer continued his ploughing.

About 10 miles away, the Germans started to dig trenches.

French and Belgian anti-aircraft planes were opened up adding puffs of smoke from their bursts to wisps of clouds.

Out from the west a French and British fighter squadron suddenly appeared, scattering the German planes.

One plane dived toward our group, and we jumped to a stone wall for protection against the machine-gun bullets which we expected to wait against the wall.

The planes pulled out of the dive, however, and returned to the combat, which was not very close.

One of the aerial fights ended in death for an unidentified British pilot—but not before he had downed one of three German planes which were attacking the front, rear and above.

The British planes crashed about four miles away from us in a meadow.

The Belgian peasants, with tears in their eyes, told us: "The poor lad. He was a hero. He fought with his plane to the very end to keep it from falling into the hands of the enemy. He lost his own life, but he saved many of ours."

In one French town on the frontier, the official death list of an earlier German raid stands at 27.

Of whom 10 were killed and nine bombs made a direct hit on a cafe where several serious others had taken refuge, destroying it.

These are not yet accounted for.

Witnesses of the raid said that after the Germans had dropped their bombs they landed in the machine-gunned crowds in the streets who were trying to help the wounded.

YOUNG PEOPLE NAME OFFICERS; HOLD BANQUET

At an impressive ceremony at Christ church the new executive of the Y. M. C. A. was installed by Rev. O. T. Gower. The installation was followed by a brief meeting in which plans for this season's activities were formulated.

Recently members of the board held their annual banquet at the Coronas hotel to which flocked over 100 young men and women. During election of officers, successful nominees were: President, Gordon Prentice; vice-president, Allan Webb; recording secretary, Marion Solari; corresponding secretary, Elaine Robertson; treasurer, Irene Hennessy; convener, Mrs. J. Smith; training convener, Dorothy Whistler; debating convener, Norman McClary; social convener, Kay Runnals; and devotional convener, Elaine MacKay.

The newly elected officers intend to launch a program of activities of the same scope as last year. As shown by a report on the 1939 program tabled by the ex-president, Harold Campbell, activities were divided into three groups, athletic, worship services and social activities.

If you want to stay young, better consume more milk, liver, kelp and green leafy vegetables. These foods, says the National Dairy Council, are the best sources of riboflavin. Riboflavin—formerly vitamin G—preserves the characteristic of youth according to its title. It gives more vim and vigor, and, incidentally, it grows older. On the other hand, lack of it brings on premature aging—including nervous depression and digestive disturbance.

Today's Wall Paper Should Be Atmospheric In Color

The style trend is toward color backgrounds which dominate the pattern. The most usable one, from a decorative standpoint, are the muted tones, with blues, purples, warm greens and mauves. Unlike the colors of a few years ago, when deep tone and white backgrounds were the style, these new colors have an atmospheric quality which gives a grace and delicacy to rooms compatible with the curves and grace of the new fashions in decoration. They also have body, though if they were to be placed beside really deep tones they would seem quite light. The reason for this is that they are greyed, and that this greying is not done with black, which would make the tone muddy and dark, but with colors, which soften the tone and as the word atmospheric implies, make them blend right into the atmosphere.

Where high styled rooms were formerly given deep backgrounds, they are now being lightened—perhaps because illuminating these dark rooms, where there was little or no reflection value, was found to be difficult, and was always, at best, inadequate. Glazing and tinting of colors has practically disappeared. It is no longer necessary to cover colors with a last minute antique effect because the colors themselves have a subtlety of tone right from the start which gives them the proper quality for use as backgrounds for antiques. Yet these subtle tones—mauve, mauves, blue-greens—the clear, Patterns in wall papers are graceful and delicate, with none of the harshness of color of other years. Today's motifs have softness, gaiety, lightness. Stripes are very dressy. Even papers for little boys and game rooms have drifted away from hard geometrics, and have fanciful gay character.

The cost, naturally, will be but little. However, the results mean so much to this city. We want to be proud of Edmonton—to hold our heads high and say, "How do you like our city?" to tourist friends. Let's plan for just that by painting, planting and fixing now. Here, why not?

VITAMIN B1 IS NEW DISCOVERY

No one knows what Vitamin B1 will do on all plants in various types of soils and various climates. This is still a matter of experiment. In test made at the California Institute of Technology, Vita B has 1. Produced larger, healthier plants with bigger flowers; 2. Produced more rapid growth; 3. Re-invigorated sick and stunted plants; 4. Produced healthier, faster growing seedlings; 5. Made it possible to transplant houseplants and trees and shrubs with very little set back; 6. Stimulated bloom on cactus and other plants that had previously refused to bloom. Vita B is not a plant food. It does not contain nitrogen, phosphorus or other food elements necessary to plant growth. Some plants manufacture their own Vitamin B and application of the solution has no effect on them. These species are mainly confined to such plants as peas, beans, corn, tomatoes, etc. Vitamin B must be used consistently and intelligently. Do not apply once or twice and expect wonderful improvements. Best results were obtained when used at regular intervals a dozen times or more. Never use the solution twice running. Wash water between each application.

Some of the results obtained at the California Institute were, daffodils with flowers as large as a salad plate, hydrangeas with flower heads more than a foot long, roses with 5 inch buds. Shrubs and trees transplanted in full bloom without a leaf falling. Seedlings matured several weeks earlier. A camellia cutting grew 11 inches in 11 months. Add the required number of drops of the solution, with the eye dropper, slopper to the amount of water specified.

PLANTS
To treat plants already established in the ground and in pots in the house, add one drop of the solution to each gallon of water in your watering can and apply as you would with plain water. This should then be well watered in like any plant food. For outdoor plants treat once a week for indoor plants twice a month.

TRANSPLANTING
When transplanting, wash off all the earth from the roots. Add 20 drops of the solution to one quart of water and immerse the roots of the shrub in the solution for 15 minutes. If the roots are not covered, either make a larger quantity or use a clean paint brush and cover the roots or scrub the roots around in a shallow pan until well covered. Replant shrub being careful not to injure the feeding roots. Apply to plant remainder of the solution left in the pan and then soak thoroughly with plain water. Outdoor plants should only be watered with the solution once each week, followed by a good soaking of plain water. This is important. Never make successive use of the solution.

Today's Garden-Graph

In positioning rocks about an informal pool, remember it is important to create as natural an effect as possible. Be sure that all the rocks slope in the same direction. Use a few large rocks instead of many small ones. Use ledge rocks if it is possible to obtain them.

Figure 1 of the Garden-Graph shows the wrong way to place rocks around a pool. When set on end and at a uniformly even distance from the edge of the pool, the rocks look out of place and artificial in arrangement.

Figure 2 shows a naturalistic positioning of rocks around a pool. The rocks are "lying down," and therefore appear in harmony with the surroundings. Part of the trick of placing rocks in a naturalistic setting is to firm them well into the ground.

ALBERTA HAS APPLICATION FOR NEW BANK

Representations Made To Ottawa For $750,000 Incorporation

Application by the province of Alberta for a charter to incorporate a provincial bank has been filed at Ottawa by W. A. Gray, R.C. minister in the attorney general's department, on behalf of the government. It was announced yesterday.

The application seeks establishment of a bank with powers under the Bank Act and with certain variations as contained in the proposed private bill which will be introduced into parliament after being passed by the cabinet.

The last legislative session the house refused a bill authorizing the government to proceed with establishment of the bank.

At that time it was said that the bank would have a capitalization of $100,000 and would have all the powers and functions of a Canadian chartered bank.

High authorities have denied rumors that Hon. Selwyn C. Lewis, provincial treasurer, who was defeated in the general election, would head the bank. It was learned that the matter has not been discussed by the cabinet or in government circles.

It is understood the situation is still being canvassed with a view to finding Mr. Lewis a seat in the house.

Garrison Observation Hospital

The Edmonton Garrison Observation Hospital, in the Immigration building, has treated 300 active service soldiers since its opening three months ago. But they don't like it unless they are awfully sick—too comfortable and the inactivity go with it. A view in one of the four wards is shown above with Capt. W. Bramley-Moore, M.D., officer commanding the Edmonton Detachment, 8th Field Ambulance, R.C.A.M.C., hospital superintendent, examining the foot of patient Supper G. W. Lancker, R.C.E. Beside the chief medical officer is Capt. C. D. Taylor, M.D. of the hospital medical staff. On the near side of the bed is Pte. J. Williams, orderly. In the lower picture Capt. H. K. Brown, D.D.S., chief dental officer of the Edmonton Detachment, 13th Field Company, Canadian Dental Corps, examines the biters of Lancker, the Otago, 11th Field Battery, R.C.A. in a regulation service field dental chair. The hospital has four wards with 40 beds, as well as quarters for officers, N.C.O.'s and men. Staff of officers and 25. Other members of the dental staff are Capt. Robert Wilson and Capt. Donald McNab. Capt. Bramley-Moore is a son of the late A. Bramley-Moore, former member of the Alberta legislature who was killed in action with the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry in the first Great War. Officer commanding the 8th Field Ambulance is Lt. Col. Hazard, Calgary.

Inquiring Cameraman

It was highly weather today at The Bulletin's Inquiring Reporter answered today: Edmonton's main aim in search of "ratism" is answer the question: "What would you do if you had the day off?"

THE ANSWERS
IRVING ROLOWAY, 24 Candel Bldg. (left): A day off? Oh boy! That really sounds enticing. I'd like to go swimming and then lie down in some nice quiet spot for a siesta and a good long sleep.

C. L. VANCE, 1161 1st street, (center): If I had the day off, I'd rescue my camera from the moshbail and get a few pictures for my snapshot album.

ALICE YOUNG, 1209 11th avenue, (right): Boy! I'd sure put in a real day in the outdoors if I had one. I'd start in with a set or two of tennis, take a swim as a refresher and wind up with a nice long hike.

IRMA CHRISTENSEN, 1010 117 street, (left): If I could have today off, I'd probably play a few sets of tennis. Then I'd go home for a nice long sleep. A bed would look awfully good now!

BETTY SHAYER, 1239 Jasper Avenue, (center): I'd like to play 18 holes of golf. And just think of the swell tan I could get while I'm doing it! A little moonlight canoe ride down the river at night would be a very acceptable way to wind up the day.

MARGARET FLEMING, clerk at Hudson's Bay store, (right): I'd like to spend a day outdoors. Swimming and collecting a nice amount of plants. I intend to go down for an order of that, will you?

Belgian Troops Again Resisting Ruthless German Invasion

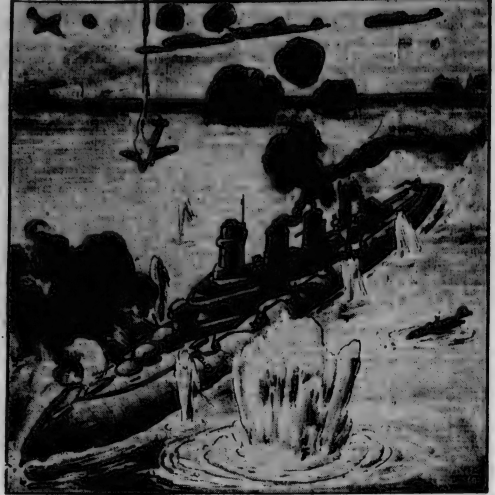

Victim of German ruthlessness during the last war, Belgium is once more hearing the marching feet of Prussian invaders as Chancellor Hitler unleashed his legions in an attempt to drive through the low lands to the sea. Renowned for their historic struggle against the invaders in 1914, the Belgian army, led by King Leopold, has again taken the field in the defence of their homeland. The royal infantry of the Belgian army are shown here as they stormed over a barricade during recent manoeuvres in Brussels. Today scenes such as this are being duplicated all over Belgium as the Nazis attempt to break through.

Fit For A Fight

In the French capital, May 4, Gen. Paul Frederic Billot, above, 71, the "fightingest man in all France," turned twinkling eyes on army doctors and demanded war duty. He was retired in 1927, after 46 years of service, fighting in every war or border skirmish where the French flag flew. He's a year younger than Gen. Maxime Wergand, recalled from retirement to head the Allied armies in the Near East.

Serving Again

Mlle. LOUISE THULIEZ, who was sentenced to death by the Germans along with the British nurse Edith Cavell in the World War, is now serving France as a canteen worker on the Western Front. The death sentence was rescinded, and Mlle. Thuliez was released by German revolutionaries after the armistice.

Into the war spotlight sails the Italian navy, currently manoeuvring in the eastern Mediterranean. It is smaller than the navies of Britain or France, but is strategically located in a sea it might control to cut the direct Allied lifeline to the near east and India. ## Where Yesterday Peace Reigned Death lurks in the streets and behind innocent-looking doors and windows in French frontier villages, deserted by their inhabitants and taken over as outposts by France's Western Front armies. The village street (above), where once children played and housewives graced, is now a mass of barbed wire. At left, below, the hayrack of a peasant's barn has become a deadly machine-gun nest. Another machine-gun crew (right, below) aim their weapons through holes they have knocked in the walls of a once-peaceful home.

Mystery Shot

While 16-year-old Edith Snyder (above) was intently poring over her schoolwork in her Abington, Pa., home, a "hall Jean fellow" crept silently onto the porch, peered through a window, and shot her to death. Police are questioning her schoolmates for an explanation.

Envoy To Greenland

Evidence that Germany's seizure of Denmark has caused Uncle Sam to take a new interest in Danish territory in the Western Hemisphere is seen in the establishment of a provisional U. S. Consulate at Godthaab, Greenland. It will be in charge of Jonas K. Penfield of the State Department's Far Eastern Division.

Reward For Hitler

Samuel Harden Church, president of Carnegie Institute, who, acting for a group of Pittsburgh residents, offered a reward of $1,000,000 for the capture of Adolf Hitler. The offer stipulates that the German Chancellor must be delivered to the League of Nations during the month of May, "alive, unharmed and unhurt." Hitler then would stand trial for "his crimes against the peace and dignity of God."

Banish Death Toll With Foolproof Roads To Match Car Of Future

Famous Designer Deplores Today's Outmoded Roads

It is a fact, not a hope, that the cow paths become the streets of today's cities. Truly, cows were our first road planners. Buffaloes also did their bit. The post, the stage and later the wagon of commerce and agriculture followed their paths.

So for years we kept on resurfacing and widening the old cow and horse paths. We have spent billions of dollars doing it. But every year the death toll goes on.

Every year more and better motor cars appear on the roads—roads that were never intended for high speed engines on rubber tires.

And today these roads are helpless to cope with the ever-increasing volume and speed of traffic. Ninety-eight per cent of state highways in this country are only two lanes wide.

We build great bridges; but we design them for only two or three lanes of traffic in each direction. Although there may be 20 lanes going into the bridge, and 20 lanes leaving it, it requires no imagination to visualize the failure of attempting to funnel 20 lanes into three.

ROAD HARDLY BUILT BEFORE OUTGROWN

You should be familiar with the fact that no sooner is a new road built than it is outgrown. That is because the life of a road is so much longer than the life of a car. The car has been improved much more rapidly and fundamentally than the road.

Motorways should be designed in terms of the automobile. Express motorways exclusively for travel of 50 or more miles at a stretch. They should be laid down first in densely populated sections in relation to present local roads. They should join heavily populated sections but avoid the cities themselves.

They should be designed to fit a machine that is built to go 80 miles an hour, that is legally permitted to go 80 miles an hour, but has to slow down to 25. And the road should be designed to take care of future needs, rather than the temporary conditions that exist when they are built.

This is what a country intersection of the future should be like. Turns would be taken on this streamlined crossing without diminishing speed.

Because the life of a road should be at least 20 years, traffic trends should be projected at least that far ahead—the road to be built.

Highways should be designed, not requirements, but on the probable requirements 20 years hence.

This express motorway would not separate traffic moving in opposite directions, but each lane of traffic going in the same direction would be segregated. You would enter this motorway at intervals from a feeder road. All cars in the same lane would be required to travel along at 25. And the road should be designed to take care of future needs, rather than the temporary would be prevented. It would be impossible to cut in and out of lanes. There would be soft shoulders but you could not get your car off the road onto them.

CAR KEPT IN LANE BY MAGNET CONTROL.

This individual lane control may be accomplished in several ways, but probably by electric-magnet control in the centre of each lane, keeping the car on its course more accurately than an airplane is kept on its course by radio beam.

Car speed control will probably be by the button on the wheel. It will be more accurate than shifting gears and accelerating or braking.

Two years ago you dialed the radio in your home to get a station. Today you press a button. There will be no intermediate steps in tomorrow's car. You will drive according to the button you push. The car behind and in front of you are kept at the same constant speed. There can be no collisions.

At intervals along the motorway there will be traffic control towers. These towers will control traffic in accordance with a block system. The radio in your car will keep you informed of the weather or any road condition not visible.

There will be no blow-outs or flats. Perfected tires will spring against this.

There will be no headlight glare. Your car will not have to use headlights, except on the country roads. The motorways will be self-illuminating. As a car moves along, the pavement of the particular lane directly ahead will be automatically illuminated.

Accidents Decrease As Motorists Learn Traffic Safety Law

Although the public might not readily agree, the number of serious automobile accidents is steadily decreasing all over the continent, a study of carefully-kept official records over a long period of years shows. This is true despite the fact that more and more automobiles and trucks are being operated each year.

Police safety department officials give two chief reasons for this improving situation concerning accidents. First, the technical safety devices are becoming ever greater, year by year in all makes of motor cars, allowing for a greater measure of precision control and quicker stopping in emergency situations.

But, as local police officers rather proudly point out, the chief reason for a declining rate in serious accidents is the educational campaign by police departments, motor associations, safety leagues and an awakening consciousness on the part of motorists themselves.

NEED EFFECTIVE BRAKES

Brakes that are not 100 per cent effective are a menace to life and limb, as are faulty lights, even slightly faulty motors and gears. They prevent quick operations during traffic congestion, police here state.

For weeks now, Edmonton traffic police under the direction of Sgt. M. J. Biddle have been methodically patrolling city streets, checking on faulty equipment operating on city streets. Hundreds of warnings are issued daily. In most cases the co-operation of motorists is heartily rewarded by the police.

THE CITY OF EDMONTON

"The Gateway to the North"

To the Motorists of Edmonton: The Motorists of Edmonton have been granted by the Traffic Department, assisted by the entire Police Force, to conduct a systematic check-up of automobile brakes during the next few weeks. Special officers are available through the garage or service station where your truck and private cars are regularly serviced.

Garages issuing stickers have a definite responsibility for the condition of the brakes they check. Action will be taken by the police against any garage or service station found to have issued a sticker to the operator of any unsafe vehicle.

A charge of 25 cents is made for each sticker to cover costs of organization and publishing this campaign. Garages purchase stickers at 20 cents each to allow them a slight profit distinction. If you employ a competent mechanic, qualified to test and adjust the brakes of your car, you may obtain stickers direct from the accountant's office at the Police Station at 20 cents each.

CHAPLAIN SAYS TOURIST TRADE SHOULD CEASE

SASKATOON, May 8.—Immediate cessation of the foreign tourist trade in Canada was urged by Lieut.-Col. R. W. G. A. Wells, C.M.G., D.D., Protestant chaplain-in-chief of Canada's armed forces in an address here last night.

Condemning the special campaign to encourage tourists, Bishop Wells asked, "what nation became great on its tourist traffic? What good will tourists do us? How will we keep out those who would do us harm. The nation would be laying itself wide open to the kind of scheming which undermined the resistance in Norway and Denmark and which it is now being forced to neutral in Europe today, he declared.

He would have every radio in Canada disconnected, Colonel Wells asserted. The way jazz was still coming out of the loud-speakers. If everything in Europe was normal, "must" him, he said. The radio, too, was the cause of too much nervousness. Listeners were fed falsehoods "both and nonsense" day after day. Rumors, generally without foundation, were constantly repeated, bewildering the public confounded and nerve-racked.

F. Baving declaring the Alberta old adjustment act ultra vires as it concerns promissory notes or bills of exchange.

Chief Justice Horace Harvey said an effort would be made to have a full court at the next sittings of the court in Edmonton.
